

AUTELCA B8011 / B8020 / B100

There were 3 models of Autelca machines, but all produced identical tickets on form number BR No.3595/1. The B8011 was the basic machine issuing 32 different tickets, initially installed at East Croydon, Lewisham, Richmond and Wimbledon from August 1985. Tickets were identical to those from the Agiticket machine at Charing Cross, showing SINGLE, OUTWARD or RETURN on the top line. Later, this was abbreviated to SGL, OUT or RET with the addition of the Adult and Child headings. The machine casing was yellow. The B8020 was similar to the B8011 but the casing was red. With both these machines only one button was pressed, each corresponding to one station and ticket type. The B100 is a larger machine with buttons for up to 100 stations plus a selection of ticket types. One button was pressed to select the station required, then a button for the ticket type. Some B100 machines also issued platform tickets. Returns from the B8011 were originally 2 separate tickets, but later modified to issue a double length ticket, perforated along the horizontal edge. Double length tickets are also issued from the B8020 and B100 types. Like the Agiticket, the Autelca ticket had a notch in the centre of the horizontal edge.

The B100 machines were originally provided at the London terminal stations, but later moved to the Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester areas and were replaced by the Ascom B8050. B8011's at the original locations were replaced by B8020's. B8050's then replaced all B8020's in the London area which were then moved to stations in Surrey and Sussex, but these have also now been replaced by the B8050. The displaced B8020's were moved to stations in the north of England on the Midland and Eastern regions but all machines have now been replaced by the B8050.
